The graphs need to be defined in the.R file and run in the.ui file. So the user runs the app and gets an output, which includes a plot. The plot is created in the.R file and is connected to the plotOptions in the.ui file, but only if they're in the same object. If they are in separate objects they only pass the same reference of the.R object. Example: shiny::withAppendState(list( plot.opts = list(plotOptions = list( series = list(color = "grey"), seriesID = "default", yaxis = list(showAxisLabel = TRUE, tickDecimals = 0, tickCount = 10, tickSize = 0.1, tickFormatter = function(...) { list(..., tickLength = 5) } ), xaxis = list(showTicks = TRUE, tickFormatter = function(...) { list(..., tickLength = 5) } ))), plot.plotDefs = list( list( type = "line",
